

The American Dream

How many of you have thought about starting your own business. Most of us have tried to come up with ideas at different points in our lives. It's "the American dream" to own your own business and be your own boss right?

But how many of you have actually tried it? It's not all it's cracked up to be. What you discover is that there is a lot to worry about. Instead of worrying about how to provide a service effectively, you also have to worry about the marketing of your idea, the budget of the company, hiring and firing of employee etc. Many companies fail, but even the successful one's are still a great deal of worry and it's never a 9-5 or 7-3 job. A successful company usually consumes your life. It becomes your new partner in life.

Travel nursing is sort of an in between solution for those of you wanting to be your own boss. You have a lot of control and say so about what you do and yet you don't have all the worries of trying to run a company. You are almost like an independent contractor. You never even meet the company you work for. There is no boss looking over your shoulder. You can tell the company when you are available to work and for how long. Then all you have to do is show up and do a good job and enjoy every minute of it without all those other worries.

You don't even have to worry about your housing because the company pays for it. To top it all off, this job or work takes you traveling to new and exciting places which are usually paid for as well.

If you think about it, travel nursing is a dream. There are not many other professions that offer this type of opportunity. If you have a chance, it is worth grasping for awhile for the experience.
